This item is printed on demand - Print on Demand Neuware - Seminar paper from the year 2005 in the subject American Studies - Culture and Applied Geography, grade: 1,7, Ernst Moritz Arndt University of Greifswald (Anglistik/Amerikanistik), 16 entries in the bibliography, language: English, comment: Double line-spacing , abstract: The United States is known worldwide for its serious crime problem. Nobody knows exactly what the actual crime rate is in America but everybody knows it is too high. 1 In fact, total crime rates in the USA are significantly higher than in other industrialized countries. By 1998, nearly six million people almost 3% of the adult population were under some form of correctional supervision.2 These developments have had important consequences for criminal justice institutions. More than 1000 new prisons have been built in the United States since 19803. Today state prisons are forced to operate above their capacity. If you have a closer look at the criminal justice system of the United States you could get the impression that crime is the product and punishment is the answer. Especially conservative politicians, together with the mass media and activists in...
