Historical Association, October 4, 1921. Mr. Mart1n Decker the author of this paper died July 1, 1922. an experience of two or three years. This mistake was committed after 1910 both by Democratic and Republican administrations. These appointments upon political grounds have been deplored by all men having real interest in the fullest efficiency of Public Service regulation. It is a course directly opposed to the appointment policy which was established by Governor Hughes. It has justified the fears of those who opposed the enactment of the Hughes Public Service Commissions Law in 1907 and who asserted that politics sooner or later would govern or dictate the appointments to these Commissions. Those fears were expressed because the old Board of Railroad Commissioners had become notoriously, as to its membership, the football of politics. For that reason doubtless, in the make up of his appointments to the Commissions, Governor Hughes rejected the name of any member of that Board for designation upon either of the two new Commissions. In 1921 amendments were made to the Public Service Commissions Law which consolidated the two Commissions into a single Public Service Commission, and greatly expanded the powers theretofore conferred by law. In making his appointments to the Commission, the Governor passed over the evident qualifications of members of the former Second District Commission who had fully dcmonstrated their fitness and efficiency. This change took place no longer ago than last April. The appointees to the new Commission...
